Jennifer Denise Mann was the youngest of three daughters of Constance Dolores Garcia and Richard Leon Mann. She was born in Queens, NY on May 5, 1969. Jennifer and her sister Pamela were often dressed alike and asked, “are you twins?” Jennifer ran after her older sisters but developed her own interests. She loved sports, cooking, puppies and kittens, and the arts. She was an athletic and creative person who enjoyed photography, film, theatre, music and writing. Jen graduated from Tisch School of the Arts, of New York University, with a major in Television and Film, and moved out to Los Angeles years ago to take advantage of the sunshine, the film industry and to be closer to the west coast Mann family.

From a young age, Jen played tennis. Her tennis talent was noted when she was just a little girl, and she continued to play for her entire life. Organizing amateur tennis matches and playing tennis were an important part of her life in New York and in Los Angeles. Active in the theatre and film industries earlier in life, Jennifer recently completed a novel, “The Left Behind Girls,” and was in the process of getting it published.

She is survived by her mother, Constance (Garcia) Mann, her sisters Celeste, Pamela and Morgan, and her brother Matthew; cousins Coco, Ricky, Sim, and Cassandra, as well as other cousins, aunts, and uncles from the Garcia, White and Mann families, now scattered across the country.

Jennifer was my roommate and friend at NYU. I have fond memories of us eating meals at Rubin Hall together with our friend Jesse, going to fraternity parties and just hanging out in the Village. Jennifer loved movies and was in charge of the weekly movie night at Rubin Hall. I am so sad to hear of her passing and offer my condolences to her family. I will always remember her warm smile and easygoing nature.

Jen has been a teammate for a few years now. When I took over as captain for a SouthBay tennis team, she mentored me -- teaching me the ins and outs of USTA regulations and team strategies. We only spent a few times on the courts, but she would always be available via text to chat with. Once, she gave me advice on raising a Taurus tennis player daughter, as she too was one. Her humor was dry, but man, when she wanted to make you laugh she absolutely can. Here in California, the news is trickling about her passing and we are a mixed bag of emotions. Shocked, yes. Devastated, absolutely. There will be an emptiness we did not know exists. To her NY family, please know, your daughter/sister/cousin/friend-- her memory will be held with love and respect. We will continue to exchange stories of Jen to keep her spirit alive. We are so very sorry for your loss.

I met Jen over five years ago, and for the past few, we had a standing Wednesday tennis game— something I came to look forward to more than I ever expected. She had the best camaraderie on the court: sharp wit, playful heckling, and a kindness that made everyone feel like they belonged. Jen was funny, smart, generous, and incredibly brave. Her energy was always light and positive, and somehow she managed to make tennis feel like both a workout and a hangout. I'll miss our rallies, our jokes, and most of all, just being around her. Wednesdays won't be the same.

Jen was a fellow tennis captain in Los Angeles for many years. She was always a very tough competitor on the court but an extremely fair captain. Her players respected her and the comradery on her team was obvious. She will be missed.

Jen was a pillar of our South Bay tennis community, but she was also my friend. I enjoyed her company on and off the courts. She was funny, smart, generous and brave. She was going to send me the latest draft of her novel this month, which I was looking forward to reading and discussing with her over a cool beer soon. I will miss her dearly. Sending my condolences to all her family.

Celeste, I am just leaning of len's pawing just now. I am in shock. We were making plans to go to the museums in July. We were texting. Then she stopped texting me... I thought I said something that made her upset. Can you tell me what happened? I am one of her oldest friends from her NYU days. I live in Manhattan. Doily@marabellaproductions.com
